Our shorter term tactical views, based on prevailing conditions and expectations, together with individual client circumstances, mean that portfolio allocations will typically be different to the strategic asset allocations of each risk profile. Accordingly, it is unlikely that portfolio returns will reflect the movement of the composite comparative indices precisely. Please note, these are not industry-wide composites; they are compiled by Evelyn Partners. They are not recognised by any of the underlying index data providers. The value of investments and the income from them can fall as well as rise and the investor may not receive back the original amount invested.
